

VISION

The vision of the Belk College of Business is to be a leading urban research business school.

FACTS AT A GLANCE

The Belk College of Business is one of the Carolinas' largest and most diverse business schools, offering outstanding business education at the undergraduate and graduate levels, along with executive education.

NIBLOCK STUDENT CENTER

From the beginning of their undergraduate career until graduation, the Niblock Student Center helps undergraduate students achieve academic and professional success. The one-stop resource provides academic support and career and professional development resources all in one location.

The center is named for Robert A. Niblock, retired CEO of Lowe's Companies and a Belk College alumnus, in recognition of his significant financial support and his desire to provide professional development opportunities for undergraduate students.

Interim Dean Dolly King

Tao-Hsien "Dolly" King, Rush S. Dickson Professor of Finance, stepped in as interim dean of the Belk College of Business in July 2023, after 17 years in administrative and faculty roles in the college.

Dr. King joined UNC Charlotte in 2006 when the Belk College of Business launched the Ph.D. in Finance program. An expert in the areas of corporate finance and fixed income securities and a skilled administrator, she has served as chair of the Department of Finance and associate dean for graduate programs and research, along with other college and university roles.

Dr. King has also been instrumental in fostering and expanding relationships with the college's eleven international academic partners. She also capitalizes on opportunities to create effective partnerships with academic and business organizations in the region that result in engaged learning experiences for students and advancement of knowledge.

A prolific researcher, she has published more than three dozen publications in leading journals, earned close to 20 honors and awards, and received more than a dozen external and UNC Charlotte grants. She has been associate editor, topic editor and editorial board member for leading journals, has provided journal review service to approximately 30 journals, and has delivered over 85 research presentations.
